HOST GUIDE

How to run the night

Before the night

- Print the Questions (host copy) and the Answer Key for yourself only. Keep the key face down.
- Print one set of Team Answer Sheets per team and one Score Sheet.
- Gather pens, a timer or phone, snacks and small prizes if you like. A bell or a kitchen timer adds fun.
- Make teams of two to six people. Mixed ages and mixed knowledge make the best teams. Five or six teams is a comfortable size.

Running a round

1. Announce the round name. Rounds are themed, so the name is a hint of what is coming.
2. Read each question twice, slowly. Give teams about 20 to 30 seconds to agree on an answer and write it down. No phones.
3. After the last question, have teams swap sheets, then read the answers aloud from the key. Teams mark each other's work with a tick.
4. Add up the round on the Score Sheet and announce the standings before you start the next round.

Spelling does not matter. If an answer is close but not the same as the key, the host's ruling is final, so decide quickly and smile.

Pacing a whole evening

A round takes roughly 8 to 12 minutes. Play three rounds for a one-hour night or all 6 for a full evening with a short break after round 3. Start with the easier themes to warm the room up, finish with the one your group enjoys most, and keep the tie-breakers in your pocket.
